Get paid today for an invoice that is due in 60 days.

A marketplace for unpaid invoices — each one becomes an ENS name anyone can check, and it expires the day the debt is due.

Live on Sepolia · seikyu.xyz

The work is done.
The money is 60 days away.

- A supplier delivers today and is paid in 60 to 90 days
- Payroll, materials and rent do not wait that long
- A bank will lend against the invoice — after collateral, paperwork and two weeks

The invoice is a PDF, and a PDF proves nothing.

- Was the work really delivered? Only the debtor company knows
- Has the same invoice already been sold to someone else?
- Checking costs more than the discount is worth — so the supplier waits

THE SOLUTION

Make the invoice checkable, and it becomes sellable

- Supplier lists an unpaid invoice · Investor buys it today at a discount · Debtor company confirms the debt, then pays in full

HOW IT WORKS

The whole deal, start to finish

STEP 1 — ISSUE

One signature turns an invoice into an asset

- Mints an ERC-721 receivable
- Deploys a resolver for this invoice alone
- Registers `inv-15.seikyu.eth` with expiry = the due date

List an invoice for sale

Fill in who owes you and how much. Seikyu creates the invoice's ENS name and puts it up for sale at your discount. Investors are paid the full amount by the debtor on the due date.

STEP 1 — ISSUE

The invoice is the ENS name

- Eight text records: amount, debtor, due date, status, issuer...
- Anyone can read it — no Seikyu account needed
- The name lives exactly as long as the debt is current

STEP 2 — BUY

Only a real person can buy

- World ID proves the buyer is one unique human
- The proof is bound to their wallet, server-side
- One human, one investor wallet — capped at 3 open invoices

STEP 2 — BUY

950 now, instead of 1,000 later

- The supplier is paid the moment the sale clears
- The ENS status record flips to funded

STEP 3 — THE DEBTOR CONFIRMS

They can confirm the debt — and change nothing else

- The debtor's accountant writes one record:
`ack`
- Editing the amount reverts on-chain, by design
- A disputed invoice cannot be bought at all

You're acting for the company that owes this invoice. Confirming or disputing writes the debtor's response onto the invoice's ENS name; the supplier and investors see it immediately, and a disputed invoice can't be bought.

Connected wallet: 0xe1D7a4149630058dCeecA0da42a50A3FFF7d9aDe
Only the debtor's accountant wallet named when the invoice was issued can write ack. Connect it using the button in the header.

WHY EXPIRY MATTERS

An unsold invoice simply expires

- No cleanup job — the due date is the expiry
- The name stops resolving; the records stay readable
- Unpaid but sold? Anyone can extend it 30 days
